Listening Comprehension

Part A

DIRECTIONS: In Part A you will hear short conversations between two speakers. At the end of each conversation, a third speaker will ask a question about what the first two speakers said. Each conversation and each question will be spoken only one time. Therefore, you must listen carefully to understand what each speaker says. After you hear a conversation and the question, read the four choices and select the one that is the best answer to the question the speaker asked. Then, on your answer sheet, find the number of the question and blacken the space that corresponds to the letter for the answer you have chosen. Blacken the space completely so that the letter inside the space does not show.

Listen to the following example.

On the recording, you hear:

(Man) Does the car need to be filled?

(Woman) Mary stopped at the gas station on her way home.

(Narrator) What does the woman mean?

In your test book, you will read:

Reading Comprehension

Time 55 minutes

DIRECTIONS: In this section you will read several passages. Each passage is followed by a series of questions. For questions 1-50, you need to select the best answer, (A), (B), (C), or (D), to each question. Then, on your answer sheet, find the number of the question and fill in the space that contains the letter of the answer you have selected. Fill in the space completely. Answer all questions following a passage on the basis of what is stated or implied in the passage.

Read the following passage:

A tomahawk is a small ax used as a tool and a weapon by the North American Indian tribes. An average tomahawk was not very long and did not weigh a great deal. Originally, the head of the tomahawk was made of a shaped stone or an animal bone and was mounted on a wooden handle. After the arrival of the European settlers, the Indians began to use tomahawks with iron heads. Indian males and females of all ages used tomahawks to chop and cut wood, pound stakes into the ground to put up wigwams, and do many other chores. Indian warriors relied on tomahawks as weapons and even threw them at their enemies. Some types of tomahawks were used in religious ceremonies. Contemporary American idioms reflect this aspect of American heritage.

EXAMPLE I

Early tomahawk heads were made of

- (A) stone or bone
- (B) wood or sticks

- (C) European iron
- (D) religious weapons

According to the passage, early tomahawk heads were made of stone or bone. Therefore, the correct answer is (A).

EXAMPLE II

How has the Indian use of tomahawks affected American daily life today?

- (A) Tomahawks are still used as weapons.
- (B) Tomahawks are used as tools for certain jobs.
- (C) Contemporary language refers to tomahawks.
- (D) Indian tribes cherish tomahawks as heirlooms.

The passage states, "Contemporary American idioms reflect this aspect of American heritage." The correct answer is (C). After you read the directions, begin work on the questions.

Questions 1-11

The Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota, where staff physicians practice a special integrated approach to patient care, is one of the largest medical facilities in the world. The clinic staff consists of a 12-member, committee-based board of governors and 900 physicians and medical personnel whose records are updated by approximately 200 auxiliary personnel. About 800 resident doctors assist the full-time physicians as a phase of their training in medicine and surgery while they acquire their specializations. The Mayo approach to treatment has been hailed for its almost miraculous patient recovery rate.

William Worrall Mayo was born in Manchester, England, immigrated to the United States in 1845, and immediately began his medical training. In 1860, he took an active part in organizing the Minnesota Territory and accepted the position of an Army surgeon during a Sioux Indian outbreak. This appointment became a stepping stone for his advancement to the post of provost surgeon for the southern portion of the state in 1863. His personal dedication and courage became legendary when a cyclone struck Rochester, and he was placed in charge of an emergency hospital.

William Worrall Mayo provided crucial assistance to his sons in launching their team practice in 1889, while they were holding positions at St. Mary's Hospital. William James became recognized for his surgical skill in gallstone, cancer, and abdominal operations. He and his brother, Charles Horace, founded the Mayo Graduate School of Medicine and donated $1.5 million to establish the foundation for contributions. Charles William, the son(20) of Charles Horace Mayo, became a member of the board of governors at the Mayo Graduate School and an alternate delegate to the United Nations General Assembly before retiring from the clinic in 1963.

William James Mayo presided in the American Medical Association and served in the Army military corps as a brigadier general in the medical reserve. Charles Horace was a professor of surgery and a health officer of Rochester subsequent to serving in the armed forces between 1914 and 1918. The Mayo practice became known far and wide for its success in surgical procedures. In 1914, the practice moved into its own medical center, and today the number of patients equals approximately 280,000 per annum. Since the clinic opened in 1907, 4.5 million patients have been treated there..

Consumers are frequently unaware that about 30 percent of nationwide department stores are franchises with numerous outlets. Chain stores are a group of retail stores that are supervised or coordinated by centralized management. From a business perspective, chain stores have numerous advantages over independent stores, one of which is that the parent company almost always has the credit to purchase large quantities of goods to supply to its outlets and to receive a discount for placing such an order. Through the centralized system of distribution, chain stores can absorb the cost and price differential and attract consumers with various physical and psychological needs. They can also distribute their operating costs for accounting, advertising, marketing, merchandising, and transportation. In general, approximately 50 percent of gross product cost results from the associated marketing research and distribution. While research focuses on the probable market segments, it strongly considers consumer behavior and cognitive motives rather than the actual prices of goods. Similarly, the cost increase in the multiple channels of distribution accounts for about 23 percent of the unit price. By combining their marketing resources and distribution networks, franchise outlets can avoid performing whole stages of marketing studies and layers of distribution networks to reduce unit prices. It is the central company that conducts marketing and communicates with manufacturers, thus controlling production decisions and the pricing policy. Franchises operate according to their contracts with the parent company and pay it a fraction of their net gains. They symbolize a brand name and identify their goods with a particular range of quality that sets it apart from other, similar products. Essentially, chain stores convert consumer brand name loyalty into profit; this factor determines franchise proliferation and results in a relatively low degree of failure.

12. With what topic is the passage mainly concerned?

- (A) The marketing of chain store products
- (B) The business rationale for chain stores
- (C) Pricing and distribution in franchises
- (D) Brand name' imaging of retail outlets

13. In line 2, the word "outlets" is closest in meaning to

- (C) retailers
- (D) outfits

14. In line 7, the word "absorb" is closest in meaning to

- (A) absolve
- (B) cushion
- (C) hide
- (D) advertis

15. It can be inferred from the passage that chain stores

- (A) are more expensive than department stores
- (B) can economize by controlling their operating costs
- (C) have a greater consumer appeal than the parent company
- (D) have power in identifying their market segments

16. According to the passage, what does marketing research include?

- (A) The actual prices of goods
- (B) Consumer segments and behavior
- (C) Multiple channels of distribution
- (D) The percentage of gross product cost

17. In line 12, the phrase "accounts for" is closest in meaning to

- (A) sees as
- (B) counts on

- (C) Dividing their purchase orders
- (D) Marketing a company brand name

19. Why does the author mention legally binding agreements between businesses?

- (A) To show feasible profitability of merchandising
- (B) To measure the value of consumer dependence on a product
- (C) To point out the means of parent company control
- (D) To exemplify the system of franchise Operations

20. In line 16, the word "they" refers to

- (A) production decisions and the pricing
- (B) franchises
- (C) contracts
- (D) their net gains

21. It can be inferred from the passage that the parent company probably dictates

- (A) what sales personnel are employed
- (B) what profit an outlet makes
- (C) how goods are advertised
- (D) how products are packed

22. According to the passage, how do chain stores profit by being associated with the parent company?

- (A) They are not concerned about market instability,
- (B) They are not held accountable for a change in profits.
- (C) They put their needs ahead of those of the parent company.
- (D) They market consumer brand name recognition.

23. In line 17, the word "convert" is closest in meaning to

- (A) turn
- (B) nestle
- (C) antagonize
- (D) fit

Questions 24-35

Because conducting censuses requires detailed planning, the organization conducting a census decides on and narrows the topics to be addressed and, more specifically, determines how to word the questions, tabulate the responses, and report the findings. Assimilating, compiling, and statistically analyzing the information is a work-intensive process that may sometimes take up to a year. Censuses examine such issues as population size and density, employment and industrial affiliation, migration, formal education, income received, housing, marital status, relationship of each individual to the head of the family, and age. A detailed series of queries sample the data associated with the quality of housing, transportation, the level of industrial production, water and electricity consumption, or the functioning of the local government. Major censuses taken by the federal government are conducted every 10 years, in the years that end in zero. Surveys of agriculture take place every 5 years and cover the years ending in 4 and 9, manufacturing censuses in the years that end in 3 and 8, governmental units in the years ending in 2 and 7, and drainage and irrigation systems in the years ending in 9.

To ensure that the census information is complete, the organization conducting the census attempts to contact every individual residing or employed in a particular geographic area. To be consistent, information is gathered at approximately the same time. Because it is practically impossible to reach every person on the same day, censuses question the individual about conditions as they were on a certain date. Following the data gathering, the information is analyzed to determine the extent of social and economic change and problems, as well as the resources available to deal with them. During the years between censuses, the Census Bureau engages in monthly interviews and queries from a sample population to update its statistics. The issues of Statistical Abstract of the United States summarize all the information that is collected by 50 federal agencies and by private and public agencies.

24. With what aspect of conducting censuses is the passage mainly concerned?

- (A) Content and timing
- (B) Inquiring and analyzing
- (C) Tallying and updating
- (D) Reporting and publicizing

25. In line 2, the word "narrows" is closest in meaning to

- (A) delimits
- (B) declines
- (C) defrays
- (D) deflects

26. According to the passage, censuses take a great deal of

- (A) funding
- (B) publicity
- (C) insight
- (D) time

27. The author mentions that censuses gather data about all of the following EXCEPT

- (A) household size
- (B) agricultural production
- (C) industrial output
- (D) social networks

28. In line 6, the word "queries" is closest in meaning to

- (A) entities
- (B) terms
- (C) quandaries
- (D) questions

29. It can be inferred from the passage that a census of industries took place in

- (A) 1990
- (B) 1994
- (C) 1998
- (D) 1997

30. In line 12, the word "consistent" is closest in meaning to

- (A) constant
- (B) uniform
- (C) assorted
- (D) conjectural

31. To gather complete information, the organization conducting the census contacts all people who

- (A) speak at the same time
- (B) have a similar economic status
- (C) are involved in similar activities
- (D) are concerned about a specific problem

32. Where in the passage does the author describe how census information is collected?

- (A) Lines 1-3
- (B) Lines 11-13
- (C) Lines 14-16
- (D) Lines 7-10

33. It can be inferred from the passage that census data are necessary to

- (A) rebuild urban infrastructure
- (B) determine arising needs
- (C) analyze the electoral outlook
- (D) identify sources of criminal activity

34. The author of the passage implies that most censuses are conducted by

- (A) private agencies
- (B) public organizations
- (C) the central government
- (D) the statistical bureau

35. In line 16, the word "statistics" is closest in meaning to

- (A) equations
- (B) solutions
- (C) questionnaires
- (D) data

Questions 36-42

The body of the honey bee, like the bodies of all insects, is divided into three sections: the head, the thorax, and the abdomen. The bee's entire body is covered with fine hairs to which grains of pollen adhere as the bee moves from flower to flower, harvesting nectar and pollinating plants. The hairs on the antennae provide a means for tactile sensing without the ability to grasp extending objects. In pigmentation, bees range from black to shades of very pale-brown, thus reflecting their wasplike ancestry. The queens are larger by far than both workers and drones, with the drones being bigger than workers.

A honey bee has five eyes—three secondary ones that form a triangle on top of its head and a large compound eye on either side of its head. The compound eyes center around thousands of lenses clustered closely to one another. Bees cannot focus their eyes, as many mammals do, because their eyes have no pupils. Bees were the first insects known to distinguish color, an ability due to the color sensitivity of their optic nerve particles. Their vision is especially receptive to hues of blue and yellow and to ultraviolet rays, unseen by humans. However, bees see red in the same way they see green but can distinguish geometrical patterns in the shapes of foliage and blossoms.

36. It can be inferred from the passage that the body of the bee

- (A) has a pronounced abdomen
- (B) has fine layers
- (C) is colored for protection
- (D) is typically compound

37. According to the passage, what do bees collect?

- (A) flowers
- (B) grains
- (C) nectar and pollen
- (D) extending objects

38. According to the passage, what purpose do the fine hairs on the body of the bee serve?

- (A) They identify the bees' ancestry.
- (B) They furnish a sense of touch.
- (C) They carry pollen to female
- (D) They camouflage the insect.

39. How many classes of bees are mentioned in the passage?

- (A) Two

- (B) Three
- (C) Four
- (D) Five

40. In line 9, the word "clustered" is closest in meaning to

- (A) lined up
- (B) turned up
- (C) bunched
- (D) bundled

41. In line 10, the word "hues" is closest in meaning to

- (A) shades
- (B) layers
- (C) specks
- (D) circles

42. It can be inferred from the passage that bees are LEAST likely to distinguish

- (A) ultraviolet light
- (B) red flowers from foliage
- (C) shapes in their proximity
- (D) patterns of leaf veins

Questions 43-50

The term "fixed star" refers to stars whose positions do not seem to change relative to other stars. As stars are constantly moving, their patterns alter gradually, but the difference may not appear significant over a period of 50 or 70 years, because, unlike planets, stars are located at a great distance from the earth. Barnard's star, which is considered to move the fastest among the fixed stars, requires 200 years to noticeably alter its position by a distance equal to the moon's diameter. Compared to planets, which seem to be continuously shifting, stars appear stationary in their positions and relative distances from other bodies in a constellation. Astronomers employ spectrographs and photometers to keep track of perpetually shifting constellations. By using the spectrographs and photographs obtained over decades, scientists are able to detect changes in the proper motions of stars. By computing the differences in the spectra length, color, and shade of color, they can predict the direction of a star's movement in the near and distant future. A classical example is the cup of the Big Dipper, which is open quite a bit more widely now than it was 40,000 years ago. According to the spectrograph-based projections, 50,000 years from now the opening will be so expansive that the constellation will no longer resemble a dipper.

43. This passage is probably taken from an article discussing

- (A) the uses of spectra for projections
- (B) various fixed constellations and stars
- (C) the classification of planets and stars
- (D) the emergence and motions of stars

44. The author of the passage implies that stars
- (A) seem to rotate differently than planets
 - (B) appear to retain their distances from other stars
 - (C) are presumed to be perpetually fixed and immobile
 - (D) alter their ray emissions gradually
45. The author mentions Barnard's star as
- (A) an example of a very brilliant star
 - (B) a description of a constellation divide
 - (C) a point of reference for star mobility
 - (D) proof of star diameter and proximity
46. In line 6, the word "stationary" is closest in meaning to
- (A) shining
 - (B) glimmering
 - (C) immobile
 - (D) immense
47. It can be inferred from the passage that
- (A) stars revolve every 40,000 to 50,000 years
 - (B) stars alter their trajectories every 200 years
 - (C) planets are closer to the earth than stars
 - (D) planets do not appear to be as close as stars
48. In line 8, the word "detect" is closest in meaning to
- (A) spy
 - (B) project
 - (C) trace
 - (D) compute
49. The author of the passage implies that astronomers detect the movement of stars by
- (A) using photographs and mathematical reasoning
 - (B) comparing the spectrum of each categorize. constellation
 - (C) overlaying the spectrum images in succession
 - (D) forecasting changes in the position of stars
50. The author of the passage conveys which of the following about fixed stars?
- (A) They are inspected by means of photometers.
 - (B) They are comparatively simple to categorize.
 - (C) Their movements are imperceptible.
 - (D) Their spectra vary in intensity.
