Listening Comprehension

Part A

DIRECTIONS: In Part A you will hear short conversations between two speakers. At the end of each conversation, a third speaker will ask a question about what the first two speakers said. Each conversation and each question will be spoken only one time. Therefore, you must listen carefully to understand what each speaker says. After you hear a conversation and the question, read the four choices and select the one that is the best answer to the question the speaker asked. Then, on your answer sheet, find the number of the question and blacken the space that corresponds to the letter for the answer you have chosen. Blacken the space completely so that the letter inside the space does not show.

Listen to the following example.

On the recording, you hear:

(Man) Does the car need to be filled?

(Woman) Mary stopped at the gas station on her way home.

(Narrator) What does the woman mean?

In your test book, you will read:

(A) Mary bought some food.

(B) Mary had car trouble.

(C) Mary went shopping.

(D) Mary bought some gas.

From the conversation you learn that Mary stopped at the gas station on her way home. The best answer to the question "Does the car need to be filled?" is (D), "Mary bought some gas." Therefore, the correct answer is (D).

Now let us begin Part A with question number 1.

Woman: The movie is almost ready. I'll make some popcorn before we start.

Man: Great idea. It's much better to have it here at home than to buy it at a concession stand.

Woman: Exactly. Could you get the large cooking pot from the cabinet? We don't need corn on the cob or any special heater, just a pot, some kernels, and a little oil.

Man: Popcorn really is one of the cheapest snacks around, isn't it?

Woman: It is. That's one reason people like it so much. But I won't add much butter. Butter tastes good, but it mostly adds extra calories.

Man: I've always wondered what actually makes popcorn pop.

Woman: Each kernel has a tiny amount of moisture inside. When the kernel is heated, that moisture turns to steam. Pressure builds until the kernel explodes.

Man: So what is the oil for? Does it make the corn pop?

Woman: Not exactly. The oil helps coat the kernels and transfer heat evenly. Without oil, the kernels could burn before they pop.

Man: And after they pop, they are huge compared with the original kernels.

Woman: Right. A popped kernel is many times larger than it was before.

Speaker: Today we will discuss how diseases spread from one person to another. A common example is the flu. When a person with the flu coughs, sneezes, or even breathes, tiny particles carrying viruses may be released into the air. Other people can become infected when they breathe in those particles. Bacterial infections can also spread in similar ways, although some diseases may require direct contact or contaminated surfaces. One important point is that people may transmit a virus even before they realize they are ill. For that reason, all infected individuals can potentially spread the disease, not only those who already show clear symptoms.

Speaker: Opinion researchers often study why people choose certain goods and services. In recent surveys, many consumers have said that time is one of their most valuable resources. This helps explain the popularity of fast-food restaurants, household services, and disposable goods, since these products can save time. Researchers also find that appearance, or how people look, strongly affects many buying decisions, especially in areas such as clothing, cosmetics, and exercise programs. But not every consumer choice is practical or appearance-related. Many people spend money on hobbies such as gardening, decorating, cooking, or crafts because these activities allow them to express personal creativity.

Questions 1-10

During the Middle Ages, societies were based on military relationships, as landowners formed their own foot armies into which they drafted their tenants and hired hands. The infantry that fought its way forward against the opposition engaged in heavy ground battles that proved costly in the ratio of losses to wins. These soldiers carried darts, javelins, and slings to be used before closing ranks with the enemy, although their swords and halberds delivered crushing blows on contact. Such armed forces were active for limited periods of time and had a predominantly defensive function, displayed in hand-to-hand combat. Because this sporadic and untrained organization was ineffective, the ruling classes began to hire mercenaries who were generously compensated for their tasks and subject to contractual terms of agreement. The greatest idiosyncrasy of a hired military force was that the troops sometimes deserted their employers if they could bank on a higher remuneration from the opposition. The Swiss pikemen became the best-known mercenaries of the late Middle Ages. In the 1300s, they practically invented a crude body armor of leather and quilted layered head gear with nose and skull plates, ornamented with crests. Their tower shields proved indispensable against a shower of arrows, and their helmets progressed from cone cups to visors hinged at the temples. As their notoriety increased, so did their wages, and eventually they were rounded into military companies that later grew into the basic units in almost all armies. During the same period, the first full-size army of professional soldiers emerged in the Ottoman Empire. What set these troops apart from other contemporary armies was that these soldiers remained on duty in peacetime. Companies of mercenaries were employed on a permanent basis in 1445, when King Charles VII created a regular military organization, complete with a designated hierarchy. Gunpowder accelerated the emergence of military tactics and strategy that ultimately affected the conceptualization of war on a broad scale. Cannons further widened the gap between the attacking and the defending lineups, and undermined the exclusivity of contact battles.

Questions 11-18

Observations of nature gained a foothold in art in the 1860s and 1870s when painters interested in science attempted to analyze the effects of light on color by means of physics. If the goal of impressionist painters was to copy the visual qualities of sunlight at different angles, they needed to reproduce light as it appears to the spectator when reflected from the surfaces of structures. In painting, the effects of shade were conveyed by using small strokes to minimize breaks between hues. The so-called divided color method appeared to grasp a shimmering reflection of shadows when minimal portions of primary-color paints were applied directly to the canvas, instead of being blended on the palette.

Edouard Manet departed from the fairy-tale style of painting with its tacit symbolism and centered his compositions around the visual reality of ordinary objects. Mary Cassatt followed with her spontaneous and subtle portraits of children, and Edgar Degas depicted ballet dancers in their artful poses and the color schemes of their costumes in soft colors.

Postimpressionism built on the techniques developed by impressionists and supplemented it with keen insight into other dimensions of objects and scenes. Paul Gauguin chose to disregard the classical conventions of composition, the application of color, and the shaping of form and imitated primitivist art that upheld the beauty of native drawings in Tahiti. Henri Matisse, created a unique style of poster graphics, deceptively simplistic in its rhythm and texture. In his view, paintings were intended to brighten and improve reality, not copy it. He noted that photography can accomplish this latter goal just as well, or even better.

11. This passage probably comes from a longer work on

- (A) science and the fine arts
- (B) great masters of impressionist painting
- (C) light in the paintings of the 1800s

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 3-4

Evidence quote: "the goal of impressionist painters was to copy the visual qualities of sunlight at different angles ... reproduce light as it appears to the spectator when reflected from the surfaces of structures"

Review

Answer: D

Confidence: medium

- (A) depicting life realistically
- (B) enhancing life and reality
- (C) showing life through photography
- (D) imparting rhythm to drawings

Review

Answer: B

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 15-17

Questions 19-30

The symptoms of hay fever include watery and itchy eyes and a runny, congested nose. People suffering from hay fever may experience occasional wheezing and repeated bouts of sneezing and may even lose their sense of smell. Some victims of hay fever may also have stopped-up ears. About 30 percent of those who suffer from hay fever may develop the symptoms associated with periodic asthma or a sinus infection. The allergen-antibody theory does not fully explain allergic reactions because the membranes and glands in eyes and ears are controlled by the independent nervous system, which keeps these organs in balance. But the independent nervous system itself is part of the emotional-response center and may cause the feelings of anger, fear, resentment, and lack of self-confidence in reaction to allergy-causing substances.

The most common cause of hay fever is the pollen of ragweed, which blossoms during the summer and autumn. When airborne pollen particles, as well as mold, come into contact with the victim's membranes, they can cause allergic reactions that release histamine and result in a virtual blockage of air passages. To prevent hay fever or to decrease the severity of its symptoms, contact with the ragweed pollen should be reduced. Although some communities have attempted to eliminate the plants that cause the reactions, elimination programs have not been successful because airborne pollen can travel considerable distances. Antihistamine can help with short but severe attacks. Over extended periods of time, however, patients are prescribed a series of injections of the substance to which they are sensitive in order to increase immunity and thus be relieved of the seasonal allergy

19. It can be inferred from the passage that the phrase "hay fever" refers to

- (A) fodder for cattle
- (B) a seasonal discomfort
- (C) viral bacteria
- (D) a lung disease

Review

Answer: B

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: line 7, line 13

Evidence quote: "The most common cause of hay fever is the pollen of ragweed, which blossoms during the summer and autumn ... thus be relieved of the seasonal allergy"

Jawaban (B) karena passage menunjukkan hay fever berkaitan dengan musim tertentu dan bahkan disebut sebagai 'seasonal allergy', jadi maknanya adalah gangguan musiman.

20. According to the passage, the symptoms of the allergy are predominantly

- (A) abdominal
- (B) intestinal
- (C) respiratory
- (D) chronic

Review

Answer: C

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 1-3

Evidence quote: "The symptoms of hay fever include watery and itchy eyes and a runny, congested nose. People suffering from hay fever may experience occasional wheezing and repeated bouts of sneezing ... About 30 percent of those who suffer from hay fever may develop the symptoms associated with periodic asthma or a sinus infection.”

Jawaban (C) karena gejala yang dominan adalah hidung tersumbat, wheezing, sneezing, asthma, dan sinus infection, yang terutama berkaitan dengan sistem pernapasan.

21. What can be inferred from the first paragraph?

- (A) Hay fever may cause severe allergic reactions and even death.
- (B) The cause of allergic reactions has not been determined.
- (C) The nervous system balances allergic reactions.
- (D) People should not have an emotional response to allergic reactions.

Review

Answer: B

Confidence: medium

Evidence refs: lines 3-6

Evidence quote: ”The allergen-antibody theory does not fully explain allergic reactions ... the independent nervous system itself is part of the emotional-response center and may cause the feelings of anger, fear, resentment, and lack of self-confidence in reaction to allergy-causing substances.”

Jawaban (B) karena paragraf pertama menyatakan teori allergen-antibody ‘does not fully explain allergic reactions’, sehingga dapat disimpulkan penyebab atau mekanisme reaksi alergi belum sepenuhnya ditentukan.

Needs manual review: true

22. According to the passage, patients suffering from hay fever may also experience

- (A) hunger pains
- (B) mood swings
- (C) nervous blockages
- (D) sensory perceptions

Review

Answer: B

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 4-6

Evidence quote: ”But the independent nervous system itself is part of the emotional-response center and may cause the feelings of anger, fear, resentment, and lack of self-confidence in reaction to allergy-causing substances.”

Jawaban (B) karena passage menyebut efek emosional seperti anger, fear, resentment, dan lack of self-confidence, yang paling sesuai dengan mood swings.

23. In line 9, the word ”resentment” is closest in meaning to

- (A) reprieve
- (B) reprisal
- (C) acrimony
- (D) grief

Review

Answer: C

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 9-10

Evidence quote: "cause the feelings of anger, fear, resentment, and lack of self-confidence in reaction to allergy-causing substances."

Jawaban (C) karena 'resentment' paling dekat dengan rasa pahit atau kebencian, yaitu 'acrimony'.

24. It can be inferred from the passage that a frequent source of allergy-causing irritants can be

- (A) organic matter
- (B) larynx infections
- (C) human contact
- (D) ear membranes

Review

Answer: A

Confidence: medium

Evidence refs: lines 7-9

Evidence quote: "The most common cause of hay fever is the pollen of ragweed ... When airborne pollen particles, as well as mold, come into contact with the victim's membranes, they can cause allergic reactions"

Jawaban (A) karena sumber iritan yang disebut adalah pollen dan mold, keduanya merupakan bahan organik, sehingga 'organic matter' adalah inferensi yang paling tepat.

Needs manual review: true

25. According to the passage, the irritants are transported by

- (A) wind
- (B) food
- (C) travelers
- (D) air passages

Review

Answer: A

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 7-11

Evidence quote: "When airborne pollen particles ... come into contact with the victim's membranes ... airborne pollen can travel considerable distances."

- (C) flowers
- (D) injections

Review

Answer: D

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 7-9, lines 12-13

Evidence quote: "The most common cause of hay fever is the pollen of ragweed ... as well as mold ... patients are prescribed a series of injections ... in order to increase immunity"

Evidence quote: "To prevent hay fever or to decrease the severity of its symptoms ... Antihistamine can help with short but severe attacks ... patients are prescribed a series of injections ... to increase immunity and thus be relieved of the seasonal allergy"

Jawaban (B) karena passage hanya membahas pencegahan, pengurangan gejala, dan peredaan alergi musiman, bukan penyembuhan total; jadi inferensi terbaiknya adalah hay fever tidak memiliki cure yang diketahui dari passage ini.

Needs manual review: true

30. A paragraph following this passage would most probably discuss

- (A) how the nervous system alerts patients
- (B) how the immune system reacts to allergens
- (C) what other diseases can be relieved by vaccines
- (D) what flowers are harmless to hay fever patients

Review

Answer: B

Confidence: medium

Evidence refs: lines 3-4, lines 8-13

Evidence quote: "The allergen-antibody theory does not fully explain allergic reactions ... release histamine ... patients are prescribed a series of injections ... to increase immunity"

Jawaban (B) karena passage sudah mengarah ke mekanisme alergi dan immunity, sehingga paragraf lanjutan paling mungkin membahas bagaimana sistem imun bereaksi terhadap allergens.

Questions 31-40

Prehistoric horses were far removed from the horses that Christopher Columbus brought on his ships during his second voyage to the New World. Although fossil remains of "dawn horses" have been excavated in several sites in Wyoming and New Mexico, these animals, which were biologically different from contemporary horses, had become extinct millennia before the onset of the Indian era. Although moviegoers visualize an Indian as a horse rider, Indians were not familiar with horses until the Spanish brought them to Mexico, New Mexico, Florida, and the West Indies in 1519. Those that escaped from the conquerors or were left behind became the ancestors of the wild horses that still roam the southwestern regions of the country. The Indian tribes scattered in the western plains began to breed horses about 1600.

The arrival of the horse produced a ripple effect throughout the Great Plains as the Indians living there were not nomadic and were engaged in rudimentary farming and graze-land hunting. Tracking stampeding herds of buffalo and elk on foot was not the best way to stock quantities of meat to adequately feed the entire tribe during the winter. However, mounted on horses, the hunting teams could cover ground within a substantial distance from their camps and transport their game back to be roasted, dried into jerky, or smoked for preservation. The hunters responsible for tribe provisions stayed on the move almost continuously, replacing their earth-and-sod lodges with tepees. Horses carried not only their riders but also their possessions and booty. The Blackfoot Indians of the Canadian plains turned almost exclusively hunters, and the Crow split off from the mainstream Indian farming in favor of hunting. In fact, some of the Apache splinter groups abandoned agricultural cultivation altogether.

The horse also drastically altered Indian warfare by allowing rapid maneuvering before, during, and after skirmishes. With the advent of the horse, the Apache, Arapahoe, and Cheyenne established themselves as a territorial monopoly in the Plains. Because Indians did not have the wheel and had dragged their belongings from one settlement to another, horses also enabled them to become more mobile and expedient during tribal migrations. In fact, the Cheyenne abolished the custom of discarding belongings and tepee skins simply because there were no means to transport them

Review

Answer: C

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 2-5

Evidence quote: "Indians were not familiar with horses until the Spanish brought them to Mexico, New Mexico, Florida, and the West Indies in 1519"

Review

Answer: D

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 2-3

Evidence quote: "Although moviegoers visualize an Indian as a horse rider, Indians were not familiar with horses until the Spanish brought them"

38. According to the passage, American Indians invented various methods for

- (A) dislocating their traps
- (B) communicating over great distances
- (C) conducting their hostile excursions
- (D) keeping their possessions

Review

Answer: D

Confidence: medium

Evidence refs: lines 12-18

Evidence quote: "Horses carried not only their riders but also their possessions ... horses also enabled them to become more mobile ... the Cheyenne abolished the custom of discarding belongings"

Jawaban (D) karena bagian ini menekankan bahwa dengan kuda mereka dapat membawa dan tidak lagi membuang barang-barang milik mereka. Pilihan ini paling sesuai meskipun redaksi soal kurang langsung terhadap teks.

- (A) led to the dispersal of Indian tribes throughout the continent
- (B) made Indian tribes relinquish their territorial monopolies
- (C) altered the future course of the Indian way of life

Review

Answer: C

Confidence: medium

Evidence refs: lines 6-18

Evidence quote: "The arrival of the horse produced a ripple effect throughout the Great Plains ... The horse also drastically altered Indian warfare ... horses also enabled them to become more mobile"

Questions 41-50

Lighthouses and lightships employ signal lights and foghorns to warn boaters of shoals and of oncoming foul weather. In recreational marinas, Coast Guard stations and yacht clubs inform boaters of weather and water conditions with storm flag signals displayed during the daytime. Amateur boaters are required to acquaint themselves with the signals that can make them aware of oncoming storms and small craft advisories. Boaters who can recognize an approaching storm when no warnings are posted have the advantage of time when heading for shelter. Compasses and marine charts identify the locations of anchored whistles and floating buoys that have battery-powered lights, bells, or horns to sound or show warnings with the onset of high winds. On the marine charts, radio beacons and flashing buoys are assigned numbers that help navigators to identify their locations and to mark the edges of channels, underwater obstructions, reefs, and wrecks.

In each section of the coastline, lighthouses emit characteristic lights, published in light lists, so that mariners can zero in on their bearings by observing the beam pattern and consulting the list. "Making lights" signal approaching vessels to make land, and "leading lights" guide navigators into bays and harbors along navigable waterways.

The lighthouse tower, constructed on solid rock and pneumatic caissons, contains lighting mechanisms, engines, and spare parts, as well as the keeper's quarters. Saucerlike Fresnel lenses with pentagonal prisms project light at irregular, alternating intervals, while sealed-beam lenses rotate at varying speeds, similarly to the traditional long-range search light. The older, barrel-shaped lenses and kerosene-burning lamps, made up of prisms and glass panels attached to a metal frame, have been replaced by acetylene gas burners and incandescent lamps that can be operated either manually or automatically and that shut off at daybreak

41. What is the best title for the passage?

- (A) The Function of Naval Signals and Buoys
- (B) Marine Installations for Boaters' Safety

- (C) To flag down oncoming vessels
- (D) To display light-coded messages

Review

Answer: B

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 9-12

Evidence quote: "lighthouses emit characteristic lights ... so that mariners can zero in on their bearings and leading lights guide navigators into bays and harbors."

- (C) To learn about oncoming storms
- (D) To overtake rivals in boating races

Review

Answer: C

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 2-5

Evidence quote: "Amateur boaters are required to acquaint themselves with the signals that can make them aware of oncoming storms and small craft advisories."

Review

Answer: D

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 9-12

- (A) Lighthouses do not contain a living space for maintenance personnel.
- (B) Lighthouse beams are projected intermittently during nighttime.
- (C) Technological expertise is expected of the lighthouse maintenance personnel.
- (D) Lighthouse technology is outdated and should have been replaced.

Review

Answer: B

Confidence: high

Evidence refs: lines 13-17

Evidence quote: "Fresnel lenses ... project light at irregular, alternating intervals ... lamps can be operated either manually or automatically and shut off at daybreak."

Jawaban (B) karena paragraf terakhir menjelaskan bahwa berkas cahaya diproyeksikan pada interval yang tidak tetap atau alternating, sehingga dapat diinferensikan bahwa sinar mercusuar tampak berkedip/intermittent pada malam hari.
